IIITCHCOCK'S COME-BACK.

No member of President Tatts of ficial family has been made the tar-Postmaster General Hitchcock. This eritletem has come largely from the magazines of the country, whose have pay a larger proportion of the burden of supporting the postoffice department, and it has been openly charged that the administration of gant and unbusinesslike.

Mr. Hitchcook's reply to these charges is contained in his report to congress recently submitted, which showed for the first time almost in the memory of man, a surplus instend of a deficit. This result was of the most important and expensive improvements that have ever been the disorderly element of the crowmade in the history of the department, to say nothing of the liberal extension that has been made in the of the unreasoning mind. efficacy of existing postal convenonces. In other words the postoffice department has been kept up to the the same time has been made to pay chairman: for itself.

For many years the idea has provalled that the postoffice was one these peace treaties than all the should not be permitted to be a during the evening." source of revenue, the theory being that it is designed not for profit but of war should go to the court of for the convenience and education of reason instead of being left to the the people. On this theory the government has staggered along year after year under a huge postal deficit which had to be supplied from other branches of the government. Indeed, under former administrations of the department, expense has far outrun

Mr. Hitchwock, however, has demenstrated the fallacy of the idea that efficiency and economy in the post- the latter years of his life as a rest office department are incompatible. He has blazed the way for future ico that he began his career as a administrations to follow, and it is ente to say that from how on the tee and Albuquerque feet a peculia postoffice will not be allowed to be pride in his achievements as a man a drag on the other departments of the government. He has confounded the west at a time when manhood, his enemies and performed a real above all things, was essential to suc service to the people.

DEADLY WEAPONS.

There is a law in New Mexico, as indeed there is in practically every state in the Union, prohibiting the carrying of deadly weapons in time

Legislation of this character has been found absolutely necessary in order to protect the law-abiding element of the community from the violence of the lawless. In different states the law takes different forms. In some few communities the citizen may obtain a permit to carry a weapon upon showing that it is necessary for his protection and upon giving due notice, by publication or otherwise, that he intends to claim exemption from the operation of the law. In most states, the prohibition is only neglight carrying a weapon concealed, it being considered a suffielent sifeguard to the unarmed city crutic senatorial candidates in Coloinen if he is put on notice by a visual rado would be to have them line up demonstration that his possible antagonist is equipped with artillery of other means of destruction.
